Claim Rejections - 35 USC § 102

The following is a quotation of the appropriate paragraphs of 35 U.S.C. 102 that form the basis for the rejections under this section made in this Office action:

A person shall be entitled to a patent unless –

(b) the invention was patented or described in a printed publication in this or a foreign country or in public use or on sale in this country, more than one year prior to the date of application for patent in the United States.

(e) the invention was described in (1) an application for patent, published under section 122(b), by another filed in the United States before the invention by the applicant for patent or (2) a patent granted on an application for patent by another filed in the United States before the invention by the applicant for patent, except that an international application filed under the treaty defined in section 351(a) shall have the effects for purposes of this subsection of an application filed in the United States only if the international application designated the United States and was published under Article 21(2) of such treaty in the English language.

Claim Rejections - 35 USC § 103

The following is a quotation of 35 U.S.C. 103(a) which forms the basis for all obviousness rejections set forth in this Office action:

(a) A patent may not be obtained though the invention is not identically disclosed or described as set forth in section 102 of this title, if the differences between the subject matter sought to be patented and the prior art are such that the subject matter as a whole would have been obvious at the time the invention was made to a person having ordinary skill in the art to which said subject matter pertains. Patentability shall not be negated by the manner in which the invention was made.

The factual inquiries set forth in Graham v. John Deere Co., 383 U.S. 1, 148 USPQ 459 (1966), that are applied for establishing a background for determining obviousness under 35 U.S.C. 103(a) are summarized as follows:

1. Determining the scope and contents of the prior art.
2. Ascertaining the differences between the prior art and the claims at issue.
3. Resolving the level of ordinary skill in the pertinent art.
4. Considering objective evidence present in the application indicating obviousness or nonobviousness.

This application currently names joint inventors. In considering patentability of the claims under 35 U.S.C. 103(a), the examiner presumes that the subject matter of the various claims was commonly owned at the time any inventions covered therein were made absent any evidence to the contrary. Applicant is advised of the obligation under 37 CFR 1.56 to point out the inventor and invention dates of each claim that was not commonly owned at the time a later invention was made in order for the examiner to consider the applicability of 35 U.S.C. 103(c) and potential 35 U.S.C. 102(e), (f) or (g) prior art under 35 U.S.C. 103(a).

Claims 1,3, 12-15 and 17-20 are rejected under 35 U.S.C. 103(a) as being unpatentable over Ritson, et al.-5520166 in view of Toth-3521643.

Ritson discloses an MDI inhaler having a main body 40 holding an MDI canister and an outlet assembly having a mouthpiece 20 with an attached nozzle block 21 for receiving the valve stem 32 of the canister. Ears 42 on the body mate with apertures 28 in the outlet assembly as shown in fig. 4 and 5. Because one could break off the ears by pivoting motion of the outlet assembly relative to the main body during disassembly, the parts are configured to deform or break on separation as claimed. However, it is not disclosed that the body and the outlet assembly are made out of materials with different constitution. However, Toth discloses an inhalation device having a body and a mouthpiece made out of materials with different constitution. It would have been obvious to have formed the main body and outlet assembly out of materials with different constitution, as taught by Toth, so that the mouthpiece could be more elastic and resilient for comfort of the user. It would also allow for 29a to flex to accommodate the ears 42 to allow their snap into the apertures 28.

As shown in fig. 3B, the portion of the block near 22 is greatly narrowed, thus forming the connecting part between the mouthpiece and the block which could preferentially break upon pivoting motion of the outlet assembly relative to the main body.

Allowable Subject Matter

Claims 2,4-7 and 16 are objected to as being dependent upon a rejected base claim, but would be allowable if rewritten in independent form including all of the limitations of the base claim and any intervening claims.

Specification

Applicant is reminded of the proper language and format for an abstract of the disclosure.

The abstract should be in narrative form and generally limited to a single paragraph on a separate sheet within the range of 50 to 150 words. It is important that the abstract not exceed 150 words in length since the space provided for the abstract on the computer tape used by the printer is limited. The form and legal phraseology often used in patent claims, such as "means" and "said," should be avoided. The abstract should describe the disclosure sufficiently to assist readers in deciding whether there is a need for consulting the full patent text for details.

The language should be clear and concise and should not repeat information given in the title. It should avoid using phrases which can be implied, such as, "The disclosure concerns," "The disclosure defined by this invention," "The disclosure describes," etc.

The abstract contains legal phraseology and is one continuous run-on sentence.

Priority

Acknowledgment is made of applicant's claim for foreign priority based on an application filed in Sweden on 11-14-1997. It is noted, however, that applicant has not filed a certified copy of the patent application as required by 35 U.S.C. 119(b).
